1. NATURE OF THE COMPANY - RURAL DEVELOPMENT INVESTMENT HOLDINGS PLC BUSINESS AND INVESTMENT THESIS

1.1 BACKGROUND

It has been observed that there is increasing rural urban migration (National Statistics Office: Rural Urban Migration 2010). Several rural areas are experiencing negative net migration where more people migrate out of rural into the urban areas, than those migrating to the rural from the urban. The cities of Lilongwe, Blantyre, Zomba and Mzuzu continue to carry positive net migrant numbers thereby creating significant burden on the resources that were meant for the smaller than would be present population. The service providers are struggling to keep up with the demand from the increasing population, thus water, energy, social services and other environmental effects become unbearable. The analysis of the statistics shows that the cities in Malawi continue to exert a pull effect on the migrants despite government efforts to deal with such situations of setting up rural growth centers. Generally, the rural urban migration is concomitant to industrialization and modernization. On the negative side it is feared that the urbanization may be growing at a higher rate than the economy leading to problems of mass unemployment and under employed migrants congregating in cities and towns. No doubt, further effects of this unemployment and under employment apart from the above mentioned is that it leads to an increase in crime rate in the cities and towns. In a nutshell, it is indirectly importing poverty from rural to urban areas.

Among the reasons why there is increasing negative migration to the rural areas include people looking for employment, health and education and generally migrants have hope to an improved quality life. From these causes, it is clear therefore that it is lack of these necessities in the rural areas that the rural urban migration keeps increasing.

Factors of production are generally listed as Land, Labour and Capital (Economic Lowdown). While entrepreneurship is listed as a factor of production, an entrepreneur combines the three factors above to generate profit. It is possible to combine Land and Labour to make Capital. It remains undisputable therefore that there is abundant land and labour in the rural areas, whereby if they are put to appropriate productive use, they would transform the rural areas to become productive create employment, create markets and improving agricultural productivity.

It is from the above analysis that a private sector initiative was commenced to analyse the rural wealth potential cognizant of the existence of the abundant land and labour in these rural areas in Malawi. The thought process of a rural based development investment initiative was therefore conceived as a private sector approach to spearhead and addressing the increasing threat of hunger, poverty among others. Such an initiative had a vision to create a company for the people of Malawi with focus on the existing rural wealth potential that leads to improved agricultural activities and industrialization of rural areas thereby creating new markets and employment, improving trade and social economic activities within the rural areas.

While more than 80% of the population is rural based, where there is also abundant unexploited land and labour resources, it remains a myth that the urban areas are now feeding the majority in the rural areas. It is clear therefore that the rural areas with their existing unexploited resources must be invested in to help to eliminate poverty and improving people's livelihoods. The rural areas should be made to be the food baskets for the cities, rather than the small city population feeding the 80% in the rural thus reversing the trend which has left our country in a state of poverty.

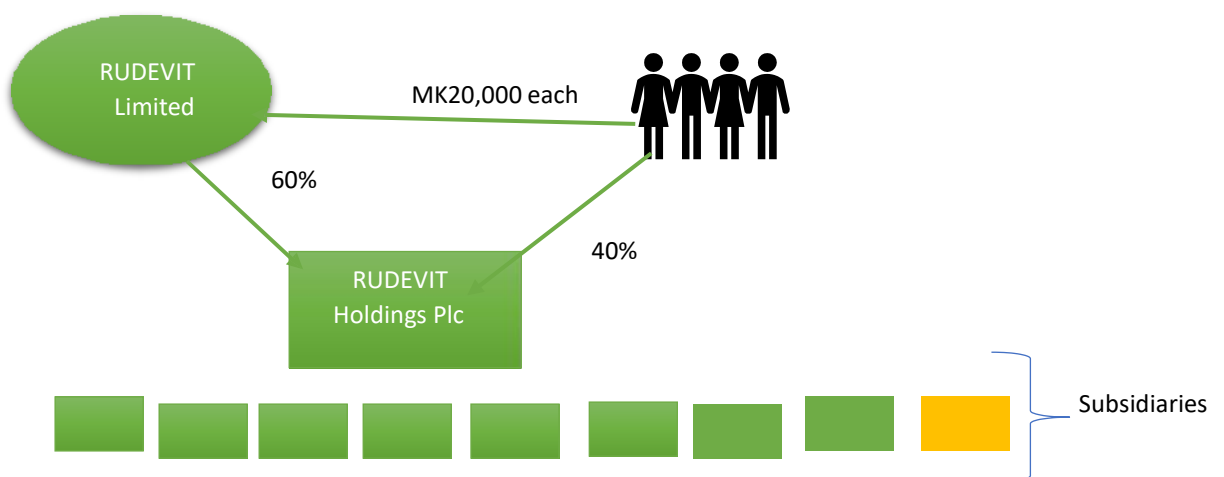

Incorporation of Rural Development Investment Initiative Limited (RUDEVIT Limited) and Rural Development Investment Holdings Plc (RUDEVIT Holdings Pl)

It is with the above background that the RURAL DEVELOPMENT INVESTMENT INITIATIVE LIMITED (RUDEVIT Limited), a private company limited by guarantee was incorporated on 10th December 2019. As RUDEVIT Limited is a private company, it could not contain all interested persons to economically participate in it. This led to the incorporation of a non-listed public company in which more people could participate called RURAL DEVELOPMENT INVESTMENTS HOLDINGS PLC on 31 January 2020. By its articles, to fulfil the agenda of spearheading innovative rural economic development, RUDEVIT Holdings PLC was made to be a 60% subsidiary company of RUDEVIT Limited. The remaining 40% is to be invested by the public and institutional investors whereby they participate by buying shares directly into it. To build the capital for RUDEVIT Limited, by its articles, members are supposed to make a once off contribution of MK20,000.00 (twenty thousand Malawi kwacha) to RUDEVIT Limited, which therefore enables them to participate in the 40% equity in RUDEVIT Holdings Plc. RUDEVIT Limited will receive subscriptions, donations, grants and any other form of contribution that will allow it to build its capital base to invest in RUDEVIT Holdings Plc. It is through this process that the objectives of RUDEVIT Limited be fulfilled. RUDEVIT Holdings Plc will invest in subsidiary companies across all sectors of the economy thereby becoming a highly diversified investment which is self-de-risking by its setup, where the company's continued going concern assumption is guaranteed by its own members.

First Members Conference/Meeting

On 25th January 2020, members and other interested participants in RUDEVIT Limited initiative, met and deliberated on several possible investments within the rural set up. The outcome of the meeting led to identification of such areas that would be invested to fulfil the objectives of the company. These areas included primary agriculture through farm mechanization, farm inputs that include improved seeds and organic fertilizer. Other areas such rural tourism, beverages, pharmaceuticals, energy, mining, manufacturing, integrated transport, and textiles were identified as some of the low hanging fruits that could be invested into knowing that there is an increasing market and demand.

Members resolved that for a wider Malawian economic participation, all the investment activities should be fulfilled through RUDEVIT Holdings Plc, a public company limited by shares where all income earning Malawians would consider acquiring shares and from where they would, while assisting development of the country also receive a dividend.

All would be subsidiary companies will be 100% controlled by the RUDEVIT Holdings Plc, except one entity which will be formed as a Development Finance Company. The Development Finance Company which will be held at 51% will be for mobilizing any additional capital requirement to finance major capital-intensive investments as identified and approved by members from time to time. Through this form of formation, RUDEVIT Holdings Plc investment constitutes the most highly diversified and self- de-risked investment securing the interests of its shareholders and investing members of the public.

From its concept, RUDEVIT Holdings Plc continues to receive inquiries from its own members and public to raise its capital and start investments in earnest. At the time of developing this Information Memorandum, there are already 112 Malawians both resident and in diaspora that have already paid their once off joining fee of MK20,000, and are now looking to buying the shares. The attraction is driven by the prestige that Malawians are beginning to take in being part of the country's rural development agenda, while directly benefiting from its returns.

As per the Articles, the above members whose names are included in the Appendix 1, have acquired 1 share of MK1.00 each, while the MK19,999.00 is contribution in RUDEVIT Limited, which in turn has been applied towards acquisition of 2,239,888 shares by RUDEVIT Limited in the RUDEVIT Holdings Plc as part of the 60% intended shareholding.

6. MALAWI —AN OVERVIEW

Located in south east Africa, Malawi is landlocked, sharing its borders with Mozambique, Zambia and Tanzania. According to the 2018 population census, the country has an estimated population of 17.5 million, of which more than 85% is located in the rural areas.

According to the World Bank rankings, Malawi remains one of the poorest countries in the world ranked at position 4 from the bottom least. This is despite making significant economic and structural reforms to sustain economic growth.

Source: Economic Intelligence Unit

The economy is heavily dependent on agriculture, which employs nearly 80% of the population. The agriculture sector is largely vulnerable to external shocks, particularly climatic shocks since the country largely relies on rain-fed agriculture.

The country's development is guided by the Malawi Growth and Development Strategies (MGDS), a series of five-year plans that contribute to the long-term goals outlined in Vision 2020. Vision 2020 has since expired. The current MGDS III, "Building a Productive, Competitive and Resilient Nation", will run to 2022 and focuses on education, energy, agriculture, health and tourism as areas mainly identified to accelerate economic growth. (World Bank report 2019)

6.1 History and Government

Malawi gained independence from the United Kingdom in 1964 and became a republic within the Commonwealth in 1966.

The country was a one-party state until a referendum in June 1993 when majority voters representing 63% opted for multiparty state. The Malawi Constitution which was promulgated in May 1995 is largely based on the United States constitution enshrining multiparty democracy and a bill of rights. An independent judiciary is also provided for, and the legal system is based on English Common law. The president and individual members of the 193-member seat National Assembly together with the ward counselors are elected by direct adult citizen universal suffrage for a term of five years.

The constitution of the Republic of Malawi guarantees protection of life and property of investors. The three branches of Government – executive, legislature and judiciary operate independently. In addition Malawi is a signatory to a number of international treaties for the protection of foreign investment and settlement of investments disputes including the 1966 convention establishing the Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency and the 1965 Convention on the settlement of investment disputes between states and nationals.

6.2 Economic overview

Malawi's emerging free market economy is largely dependent on agriculture. In addition to maize the major food crop, principal cash crops grown are tobacco, tea, sugar and cotton. Agriculture accounts largely for approximately 40% of the country GDP, contributes more than 90% of export earnings and provides the majority of the rural population with means of existence.

According to World Bank report, in 2019, Malawi's economic growth was projected to reach 4.4%, increasing over the medium term to 5.0% - 5.5%. Growth in 2019 was buoyed by a good harvest overall, despite the impact of Cyclone Idai. Solid agricultural growth was likely to support agro-processing and households' disposable income, which should, in turn, drive the service sector. In a greater part of the 2019, the economic gains have been dwarfed by the political impasse following the disputed general elections of May 2019.

The World Bank projected that the FY2018/19 fiscal deficit was expected to stand at 6.4% of gross domestic product (GDP), lower than the previous year (7.8% of GDP) but higher than budgeted (3.8% of GDP). The higher than anticipated deficit was due to lower revenues and grants and higher recurrent expenditure, the latter due to higher than budgeted interest payments, election-related spending, and effects of climate change.

Headline inflation continued in single digit standing at 9.3% in July 2019 compared to 9.0% in July 2018. The decline of inflation in general, was largely as a result of a steady deceleration in non-food inflation which reached 5.5% supported by a relatively tight monetary policy. Food inflation, however, remained elevated at 14.2% with continued pressure from maize prices which by the end of July were 75% higher than July 2018 and 66% higher than the five-year average. The annual inflation rate eased for the seventh month to 8% in July 2020, reaching the lowest level since February 2019.

The price of maize continued to surge in early 2020. While this is assumed to be temporal, the Reserve Bank at its January Monetary Policy meeting maintained the bank policy rate at 13.5%.

The World Bank reports further that poverty and inequality remain stubbornly high. The national poverty rate increased slightly from 50.7% in 2010 to 51.5% in 2016, but extreme national poverty decreased from 24.5% in 2010/11 to 20.1% in 2016/17. Poverty is driven by low productivity in the agriculture sector; limited opportunities in non-farm activities; volatile economic growth, rapid population growth, and limited coverage of safety net programs targeting challenges.

In the budget speech by the Minister of Finance prior to the fresh presidential elections presented to the August House for the 2020/21 fiscal year, he stated that the IMF have projected the Sub Saharan Africa to perform as follows: GDP growth has been slashed down from pre-pandemic growth rate of 3.1% to -1.6%, the lowest growth rate ever in the region. The region is however expected to recover in 2021 and record a growth rate of 4.1%. South Africa, Malawi's major trading partner is expected to register a recession of -5.8% in 2020 but to rebound in 2021 to record a growth of at the rate of 4.0%.

6.3 Outcome of Fresh Presidential election

The country has just gone through fresh presidential elections following the annulment of the 2019 elections by the Constitutional and Supreme Courts. The Tonse Alliance comprised of 9 political parties led by Malawi Congress Party's Dr Lazarus McCarthy Chakwera and Dr Saulos Klaus Chilima former vice President and UTM's party torch bearer as his running mate came out victorious, dislodging the incumbent president Peter Mutharika. The combined manifesto of the alliances has concentrated mostly on improving agricultural productivity and creating new employment and ending poverty. The manifestos also look at value addition through manufacturing and import substitution. The new leadership has stressed on the need to abolish the Farm Input Subsidy but instead introduce a universal farm input subsidy where they have pegged the price of fertilizer at MK4,495.00 per 50kg bag. This is one of the measures of improving agricultural productivity thereby eradicating hunger and poverty whilst improving peoples' livelihoods. The new administration has sent a strong signal to root-out corruption in its various forms and diligently deal with anyone involved directly or indirectly with any form of corruption in the country. This is an inspiring policy to the investing community in the country and puts to rest political tension and instability for the next foreseeable future and thereby creating a highly conducive investment platform.

6.4 Enabling law- The Control of Goods – Act 15 of 2018

In May 2018 Government of Malawi through Parliament passed a Control of Goods Act 2018. Following the operationalization of the Control of Goods Act on 24 July 2020, the Ministry of Trade has revoked all import and export licenses. This revocation means that all traders requiring import and export permits will have to re-apply for new licenses. In his presentation, the Minister of Trade challenged local manufacturers to produce more for import substitution, saying the new law will protect local production and markets to ensure that only those products in deficit are authorized to be imported. The Control of Goods Act 2018 came into effect following its publishing in the government Gazette on 16 July 2020.

7. MALAWI'S DEVELOPMENT CHALLENGES

The World Bank in its 2019 report states that Malawi's development challenges are multi-pronged, including vulnerability to external shocks such as weather and health. Other challenges include rapid population growth and environmental degradation. Energy shortages still stand out, with about 11.4% of the population having access to electricity. Infrastructure development, the manufacturing base, and adoption of new technology are low, and corruption levels remain high with Transparency International ranking Malawi at 123/180 in its January 2020 publication.

These development challenges are opportunities for creating a pool of investments that should positively contribute to the development of the country.

8. IMPACT OF CORONA VIRUS ON ECONOMY

The recent outbreak and spread of the Corona virus has disrupted many businesses globally and has had a significant impact on economy. The Malawi government has had various stimulus packages supported by different government functionaries, Reserve Bank and commercial banks. The Reserve Bank lowered the bank rate further to improve liquidity in the market by further encouraging banks and financial institutions to lower interest rates and arranging repayment plans for borrowers in various categories. The aftermath of COVID 19 will have a significant impact on the economic recovery of most economies around the world. The recovery from COVID 19 gives an opportunity for Malawi to be more inward looking in terms of its investments. The country requires an inward thought process in terms of investments that will largely be targeted at developing strong institutions locally which can be invested thereby substituting the dependence on import requirements for the country. The country will be looking at encouraging local investments in all investible areas than ever before. It gives an opportunity for like minds to think deeply in all areas that can be easily substituted by domesticating manufacturing industries. By encouraging local production, the country will be creating employment, creating new markets for locally grown crops and raw materials into manufacturing. This will in the long run having satisfied local demand create an affordable and largely cheap export product lines which will enable Malawian products to compete favorably on the international market. The authorities will work towards rolling out local investments that have hitherto been chasing matured investments and now to support most start-ups as a way of invigorating the economy, through creation of markets for locally manufactured goods.

9. MALAWI INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Malawi remains largely under invested in several sectors of the economy which include:

- Agriculture,
- Manufacturing
- Tourism
- Mining
- Energy
- Textiles
- Transport

While the country remains endowed with several resources, such resources remain unexploited owing to lack of capital.

9.1 Agriculture and fisheries sector

The agriculture sector which is a backbone for the Malawi economy remains uninvested. It remains uncontested that the growing population will require to be fed and clothed. There is an existing gap between the growth in agricultural output versus the rate of growth in population. The status quo will lead the county to an absolute food shortage, where the country will be forced to start importing food to supplement local production. Most financial institutions have shunned this sector particularly primary agriculture, because of the perceived risks associated with unpredictable climatic changes. An increase in primary production will increase output which feeds into the tertiary agricultural value chain especially agro-processing. As such there is an opportunity to invest in primary agriculture through Farm Mechanization, Seed development and fertilizer production. It is largely contended that every produce has an existing market, which in turn creates an opportunity for increased investment in agriculture.

According to the Ministry of Finance Economic Report 2019, in 2018, the sector grew by 0.9 percent. Although growth was affected by the decline in crops (maize) as a result of the dry spell and the Fall of Army Worms, there was an increase in tuber production. Growth for 2019 was estimated to be 5.3 percent on account of the good rains the country received. Growth for the sector will mainly be driven by Crop and Animal Production and the Fishing and Aquaculture sub-sectors. There is a contraction in the Forestry sub-sector on account of deforestation that has plagued the country in recent years. Growth in 2020 is projected to be 3.8 percent.

9.2 Manufacturing sector

The country's manufacturing sector remains underinvested leaving the country to be importing most of its manufactured goods from neighboring countries even though such goods can be processed locally. Citrus fruits that give a lot of tropical juices and are growing in all parts of Malawi. These remain wasted and rot unprocessed while on the other hand the country continues to import large volumes of fruit juices. The country's fish industry remains uninvested. Although Malawi has over 1,000 species of fish in Lake Malawi none of this fish is processed. Instead the country's supermarkets are heavily stocked with imported fish which are also generally of inferior quality to tilapia Chambo or Malawi's Usipa among others.

The Vitamin A fortified orange hybrid maize that is largely produced in the districts of central region of Kasungu, Mchinji and Lilongwe is left to mainly production as animal feed. Research shows that clear beer that is imported in the country can easily be produced from this maize as has been proven in other neighboring countries, thereby potentially substituting the import bill by mostly using locally produced materials to produce beer.

While the farmers in Kasungu, Mchinji, Lilongwe, Dowa, Ntchisi, Salima, Nkhosakota and larger parts of Mzimba and Rumphu grow groundnuts as a cash crop most of this ends up being exported raw when in fact they could be processed into various products such as cooking oil and peanut butter for both domestic and international markets. The country grows sunflower under the favourable climatic weather in Mzimba, Kasungu, Dowa Mchinji and most parts in Northern and Southern regions. Sunflower can be used for processing vegetable cooking oil and animal feed. In the absence of a reliable processing facility, farmers are shunning the crop because of lack of better market to sell it for processing.

The country's rural areas mostly in Central and Southern Region produce large volumes of soya beans which is sold to neighbouring countries in its raw form. From soya bean the farmers can benefit by having a proper milk plant that will easily supplement the dairy milk that is currently in short supply. The country continues importing milk including the expensive soya milk from neighbouring countries when this can be easily invested locally.

There is excess tomato that is produced in the rural areas of Balaka Ntcheu Mzimba-Jenda that rots as a result of lacking manufacturing facilities. A properly planted machinery that can make tomato sauce will uplift the lives of rural Malawians turning the crop into a real cash crop and raise peoples livelihoods getting them out of poverty.

According to the Ministry of Finance Economic Report 2019, in 2018, growth in the sector was a moderate 3.6 percent due to frequent power cuts. In 2019, there were expectations of improvement in the availability of raw materials due to a better agriculture season. Moreover, improvements in electricity generation and supply will also help to grow the sector, hence growth is estimated to reach 4.6 percent. In 2020, the sector is projected to grow by 3.7 percent.

9.3 Mining and quarrying industry

The mining industry remains uninvested largely due to lack of capital. Malawi is endowed with a lot of mineral potentials, yet these remain unexplored. Several associations such as that of women mining association have failed to invest and maximise returns due to lacking technical and financial capacity.

According to the Malawi Economic Report 2019 by Ministry of Finance, the growth estimate for the sector in 2018 was 2.1 percent. Although Mchenga Coal Mine was closed down in late 2018, the company was mining at a smaller site to maintain production. In 2019, growth in the sector was estimated at 3.6 percent and projected to reach 5.8 percent in 2020. Growth in the sector will be driven by major exploration works that are currently in progress at Malingunde in Lilongwe among others and increased revenue from Kasikizi coal mine and the limestone mine in Mangochi. In addition, with a lot of construction activities taking place, quarrying is also expected to increase, thereby contributing to the overall growth of the sector.

9.4 Farm inputs - fertilizer

Malawi has since time in memorial been importing most of its fertilizer requirements. There is potential for the country to produce its organic fertilizers that will improve the soil fertility thereby improving productivity. The demand for organic foods is on the increase around the world. The country still has some virgin lands that can potentially produce organic foods to compliment the international demand for organic foods. Organic fertilizers are produced from locally available materials that include animal manure, sewage disposal and compost, among others.

9.5 The Energy sector

The energy sector while a major component in manufacturing and a gateway to industrialization remains uninvested. The country's available generation capacity is far below industrial demand. Several investments in energy have come in the country to supplement energy resources which includes solar and mini grids that are slowly developing on the small rivers in the country. The country has several identified hydro potential areas that remain uninvested subject of conducting proper feasibility studies on such sources and availability of capital. The numerous identified manufacturing processes will largely rely on availability of energy, potentials of which exists in Malawi. The energy sector is guaranteed of immediate 100% uptake by the existing manufacturing potential.

9.6 Textile industry

The textile industry is one of the oldest industries in the world. Malawi remains with exceptionally attractive climatic conditions for the growth of cotton in the districts of Karonga, Salima, Balaka, Chikwawa and Nsanje. The textile industry has potential to create employment and thereby transforming people's lives by engaging in growing cotton. The country's history points to the fact that the country grew its cotton and already has excess ginning capacities located in the same geographic area. While production of lint has been the tradition, the Malawi lint is competing unfavorably on the international market leading to farmers obtaining poor market prices for the crop. As a result, most farmers have withdrawn from growing the crop despite having the favorable climatic conditions. The country's uptake of textile industry is sufficient considering the growing population which shall always need clothing. There is every reason to increase productivity of cotton for local manufacturing, demand which remains unsatisfied as demonstrated by the large volume of imported clothing in the country that includes secondhand clothes and imported cloth from other countries. Improved seed varieties, access to cheaper farm inputs and improved market prices has potential to immediately boost cotton production thereby creating employment that will boost the economy.

9.7 The Transport and storage sector

The Transport sector is the oldest industry that remains improperly invested. This has hindered development of the rural areas as the existing transport systems have unfavorably been for rural areas. All person plying their trade in this sector have only concentrated on the existing tarmac roads in Malawi. The rural areas have been shunned making it extremely difficult for the rural farmers to move their produce to the markets. The poor road infrastructure comprised of roads and bridges remain in sorry state. Farmers are discouraged to take their crops to the markets hence they remain poor, despite their potential to ably produce and improve their livelihoods. The unintegrated transport system makes the transport sector to become extremely expensive hence shunned by most investors.

According to the Ministry of Finance Economic report for 2019, in 2018, the Transportation and Storage Services sector is estimated to grow by 4.9 percent. In 2019, growth was estimated to tick up, to an annual rate of 5.5 percent mainly due to election related activities. The sector is projected to grow by 4.4 percent in 2020.

9.9 Tourism sector - rural

Malawi's rural tourism remains heavily unexploited. With the numerous existing rural touristic destinations that exist in Malawi, such investment has not been carried out due to lack of capital. Malawi has concentrated their tourism activities in hotels and lodges that exist around the cities while the rural potentials remain unexploited. Mulanje Mountain is highest point in Central East Africa. Lake Malawi with over 1,000 fish species has been unexploited. The northern region with Vwaza Marsh, Nyika plateau and Livingstonia escarpments remain uninvested. The southern region with the Zomba plateau and the historical old capital site remains attractive destinations yet has hitherto remained uninvested. The lower Shire with the rural attractive Lengwe and Ndindi marshes have not been opened up as much to tourists including Malawians. The country's various water falls on the beautiful rivers on Malawi, Shire, Rukuru, Luwawa among others have vast rural tourism potential that require investments.

According to the Ministry of Finance Economic Report 2019, growth estimates for the Accommodation and Food Services Sector for 2018 and 2019 are 5.9 and 4.0 percent respectively. Growth was mainly driven by activities related to the Population and Housing Census in 2018 and by the elections in 2019. In 2020, growth is projected at 3.8 percent.

15.1 Assumptions underlying profit forecasts

Relatively stable economic environment over the forecast period is expected with inflation around single digit up to 9% . Interest rates are projected to be under 15% and a relatively stable exchange rate against the US$1.00 to MK750 as a ceiling.

Despite anticipated possible competition that will arise in all these new projects, the aggressive marketing plan that will be put in place will lead the projects to their success. There will be increased demand for agricultural products owing to increased agricultural productivity being the main stay of the Malawi economy.

Revenues will be expected to marginally increase in the subsequent years as the projects take-off and consumers get more accustomed to local products being substitutes for foreign products however of the same quality. The company will largely take advantage of the “Buy Malawi” campaign dully supported by the Control of Goods Act 2018.

The above forecast is indicative and will be subject to detailed examination by management and directors before any investment can be made in any of the identified projects.

15.1.1 Investments Considerations

Prior to investing in RUDEVIT Holdings Plc, investors should carefully consider the risks relating to Rural Development Investment Holdings Plc, being a totally new entrant in the market however covering all sectors of the economy in Malawi, its business together with all other information obtained in the Information Memorandum.

15.1.2 Competition

RUDEVIT Holdings Plc and its subsidiary companies in the various sectors of the economy are new. The company will face competition with certain small-scale producers and importers of probably some of the products that will be produced for the market. The directors are aware of such competition and will put in an aggressive marketing strategy that should within two years lead to total acceptability of the locally produced items on the market. Furthermore, the company will continue to rely on the Best Buy Malawian campaign to mobilise its support for locally manufactured goods in preference to imports, together with the existing laws in particular the Control of Goods Act 2018.

15.1.3 Macro-economic risk

RUDEVIT Holdings Plc's growth is largely dependent on Malawi's economic growth which is also largely dependent on the performance of the agricultural sector. The increasing population will need agricultural produce for the support of the livelihood. The growing population must continue to be fed and clothed.

As most of the capital equipment must be imported, access to foreign exchange is needed to source the significant part of the company's capital equipment. The availability of forex is dependent on increased inflows from continued exports of agricultural products and proceeds from multilateral donors. On the positive, RUDEVIT Limited a company limited by guarantee that holds 60% of equity in the issuer company will largely depend on its members goodwill to pay subscriptions and raise donations and receive grants at various levels. It is from these grants that it will potentially raise part of the forex requirements for the issuer that will in turn be applied to importation of machinery among others.

15.1.4 Operational risk

The operations of these mostly new investments are dependent on availability of energy to drive the machineries producing various products, in fertilizer, manufacturing and value addition. This may interrupt the operations from time to time. In considering these investments, the directors have considered alternative sources of power including standby generators for each investment apart from other forms of power that might be relevant for that purpose. In the long run, it is the intention of RUDEVIT Plc to invest in energy through one of its subsidiary companies that will subsequently drive the machineries.

15.1.5 Regulatory risk

The company's planned initial investments are generally in non-regulated areas. However, in considering these investments, the directors commit to complying with all existing laws and regulations. The information memorandum is subject of registration with the Registrar of Financial Institutions.

15.1.6 Self-de-risking

RUDEVIT Holdings Plc is a self-de-risked investment in that the ultimate Holding company is a company that is limited by guarantee offered by Malawians who are also its shareholders holding the part of the 40% stakes in the company. As such unlike any other set ups, the company will continue in existence for as long as the country remains in existence. Guarantors will be replaced from time to time while the company continues in existence. Its shareholders are basically also its guarantors.

16 Identified projects

The projects below are derived from the discussions among members of the company during the inaugural conference held on 25 January 2020. While the numbers have been populated from detailed workings, they are still subject or detailed analysis by management and directors at the time of investments. Accordingly, their presentation is an illustration of the various potentials that are available for a collective investment with Malawians teaming up and improving agricultural productivity and encouraging local manufacturing while delivering a return to members.

16.1 Rudevite organic fertilizer

Project name: RUDEVIT ORGANIC FERTILIZER

Description:

Organic fertilizer is that type of fertilizer that is produced from plant and animal waste such as manure and compost among other debris. Organic fertilizer in addition to releasing nutrients, as they breakdown they improve the structure of the soil and increase its ability to hold water and over time organic fertilizers will make the soil and plants healthy and strong.

They are the ultimate slow release fertilizer, and it's difficult to harm plants however with great potential help to restore soil fertility. Amongst the advantages, organic fertilizers have little or no toxic buildups of chemicals and salts that can be deadly to plants. Above all organic fertilizers are renewable, biodegradable, sustainable and environmentally friendly.

There is acute shortage of good affordable fertilizer in Malawi. The current supply is mostly chemical based and imported into the country with excessively high landing costs making them unfordable for both subsistence and commercial farmers. This has among other reasons led to reduced levels of cultivation. The soils have lost their natural fertility leading to retarded agricultural output.

The project seeks to install three organic fertilizer plants within the vicinity of farmers in the three regions in the districts of Mzuzu rural, Lilongwe Rural and Blantyre rural. The organic fertilizer packaged in 50kilogram bags sizes will initially sell at affordable prices by Malawian farmers. The design is to have three plants that will have combined capacity to produce up to 10 to 12 Metric Tons per hour, thereby yielding around 100.5 Million metric tons per annum. At an appropriate pricing these will yield expected gross sales of MK8Billion per year.

COST OF INVESTMENT

Machinery installation costs, land and buildings, operating equipment is estimated to cost (US$442,500) equivalent to MK331.875Million. The total cost of investment is estimated at MK507Million

16.2 RUDEVIT VALUE ADDITION SOY MILK

Project name: RUDEVIT VALUE ADDITION: SOY MILK PRODUCTION

DESCRIPTION

Soy milk is a type of grain milk which is prepared by soaking dried soya beans properly grinded in water. Soy milk is a stable emulsion of water, oil and protein. Soy milk is available in various flavors in the market. It is also highly fortified with extra calcium and vitamins. Soy milk contains high amount of essential ingredients such as carbohydrates, proteins, and calcium as compared to regular cow milk. Soy milk does not contain lactose and is highly preferred by consumers which are lactose intolerant and individuals that avoid dairy products, including vegan consumers. Manufacturers are offering innovative soy milk-based products which are fortified with vitamins such as vitamin B12 and B3, minerals and iron for increasing their product quality. Soy milks are the most consumed milk alternative worldwide which are boosting the sales growth over the recent years. Soy milk is mostly consumed by individuals which are lactose intolerant, allergic to soy and soy-based products or milk products. Soy milks are rich in protein and is calcium fortified drinks.

The project seeks to invest into a company that will use soya to make soy milk. Soy is grown in several districts in Malawi especially the central and northern areas. Presently the soya is just used for making soya flour used as a protein supplement for children. Soya has high value industrial use to produce milk.

Research has shown that there is acute shortage of milk and the demand for milk is on the increase. Malawi relies largely on dairy milk. The milk supplies are supplemented by imports from South Africa and Zimbabwe for fresh liquid milk, while the powdered milk is imported from South Africa and Netherlands among other countries. The recent economic effects arising from Covid 19, require that Malawi just like any other country in similar situation develops its own sovereign resilience and invest to sustainably produce its own products, thereby saving on the scarce forex requirements and meet domestic demand with exigencies arising from the pandemic.

Subject to detailed evaluation by the management and directors, the company will invest in a plant that will produce 1,000 litres per hour yielding 24,000 litres per day or 8.7Million litres per annum at with maximum capacity. This is long life milk that will be packaged in various forms for ease of delivery to final consumer retail stores. In investing in this project, the company seeks to provide alternative market for the farmers, creating employment and improving agricultural productivity thereby sustainably eradicating poverty while delivering a profit to the company's shareholders. The byproduct from soya are used for other food nutrients such as soya pieces, confectionaries and highly nutritious animal feed.

COST OF INVESTMENT

It is estimated that the machinery costs US$120,580 with shipment costs amounting of $11,000. Construction land and buildings is estimated at MK140,000Million together with initial working capital amounting to MK380million. The total cost of investment is estimated at around MK790.4Million.

16.3 RUDEVIT FARM MECHANIZATION

RUDEVIT FARM MECHANIZATION

DESCRIPTION OF THE PROJECT

The project seeks to invest in farm mechanization that will assist the farmers to ensure that eventually all cultivable land is tilled. This will assist the farmers to increase productivity on the basis that they can now grow on a more increased hectareage.

Research has shown that there is low productivity because generally the subsistence farmers are still using traditional methods of farming using the hoe. The subsistence farmers have never benefitted from the fruits of the first industrial revolution leading to retarded productivity. While the 18th century farming was characterized by a hoe, the demand for food arising from increased population growth surely require also modern methods of farming. The majority subsistence farmers are aged and agriculture is being shunned by the youth due to its labour intensity as such here is need to make it exciting hence the support. Such support can only be through mechanization apart from other farm inputs and extension workers. By investing in equipment such as tractors and ploughs, ridgers and making them available to farmers for hire at affordable rates, will assist them to increase hectareage of growing which in turn together with improved farm inputs such as fertilizers and hybrid varieties of seed, will enable them to increase productivity. This will help to significantly reduce hunger and with excess productivity easily made available to market for value addition and processing.

The project will deliver farm implements in all districts in Malawi, it will put inn place agricultural extension workers thereby almost quadruplicating the level of agricultural production in Malawi and eradicating hunger.

COST OF INVESTMENT

It is expected that the project will cost MK1,524,850,000 in purchase of equipment, while Mk2,893,200,000 will be required as working capital totaling MK4,418,050,000 in the first year. PROJECTED

16.4 RUDEVIT SEED DEVELOPMENT

DESCRIPTION
In the Malawi Growth and Development Strategy III (MGDS III), Agriculture remains the priority area number one. Seed is a basic and vital input for successful agriculture production. The ability of improved high-quality seeds to maximize crop yield whilst decreasing arable land is the significant factor driving the market growth. World population is anticipated to reach 10 billion by 2050. This is anticipated to drive the need for food, which in turn is expected to further drive the market. Also, rising disposable income per capita is anticipated to result in extensive and inefficient consumption of resources. This is expected to present a lucrative opportunity owing to the ability of improved high quality seeds to increase crop yield compared to farm-saved or recycled seeds. Most subsistence farmers in Malawi continue to use recycled seed whose harvest has largely been poor. New advancements in molecular biology have facilitated cheaper and faster mapping of genetic codes of plants. Farmers can efficiently cope with major agricultural challenges, such as high demand by increasing their production through Genetically Modified (GM) seeds. As a result, there is a significant demand for biotechnology seeds owing to their great efficiency in agricultural production. The project seeks to invest into a company that will commercially produce high quality improved seed and make it available to the farmers at affordable prices for the soils in Malawi. It will work with researchers in identifying suitable varieties for multiplication of seed. Research has shown that the demand for improved seed varieties for various crops remains unsatisfied. Certified bean production for example, is only sufficient for less than 10% of available crop area (DARS 2017). While there are seed companies on the market, they have persistently failed to satisfy the ever-increasing demand. RUDEVIT will lead to increased productivity which must be supplemented by additional seed source, in cereals and legumes. The increased demand for value addition calls for increased seed development, production and supply. . The project will make available an equivalent of at least 3,000 Metric Tons of high-quality improved seed every year that will be made available at affordable prices to the farmers, thereby assisting their productivity while delivering a return to shareholders.
COST OF INVESTMENT
The machinery is estimated to cost US$151,850 while the office complex is estimated at MK100Million and estimated working capital amounting to.....and total initial investment totaling MK1,284,682,000.

16.5 TOMATO SAUCE AND KETCHUP FROM FRESH TOMATOES

TOMATO SAUCE KETCHUP FROM FRESH GARDEN TOMATOS

DESCRIPTION

Malawi grows a lot of tomatoes in the northern, central and southern areas around Mzimba, Ntcheu and Balaka respectively. Most of the tomato is sold fresh in the local markets and along the roads located on the famous markets of Jenda and Lizulu. A significant portion of the tomato is wasted on the basis that it cannot be preserved and also on account of such tomatoes getting ripe at the same time with no alternative means of preserving it. A lot of women are mostly seen being scotched in the sun by the road sides in the sun in anticipation of making a sale. The tomato is largely dumped and thrown away as waste owing to failure to make a sale.

The project RUDEVIT seeks to invest in a machinery that will see all that tomato being processed into tomato sauce and tomato ketchup that can be preserved and made available in the super markets and all groceries at affordable price to Malawians.

Research shows that Malawi imports most of its tomato sauce supplies from as far as South Africa and Zimbabwe. Furthermore research shows that almost all supermarkets are stocked with imported tomato sauce signifying that there is unsatisfied demand for the product provided it can be delivered at a competitive price to largely substitute the country's import bill. It is expected that Malawians will now possibly switch as far as possible to the locally produced Malawian Tomato Sauce being of high quality from Malawian own grown tomatoes. The recent suspension of import licenses by government gives RUDEVIT an opportunity in this area to manufacture for the domestic market.

RUDEVIT intends to import machinery from the preferred supplier, which will convert up to 5 tons of fresh tomato into processed tomato sauce packaged for the convenience of the market. The factory to be located in the area deemed to have large supplies. RUDEVIT also looks into possibility of carrying out contract farming to be guaranteed of supplies. The coming in of the factory will significantly reduce the wastage that has hitherto occurred because of lack of alternative market for the raw materials. The company has plans to engage in aggressive marketing that will speedily penetrate the product on the market.

COST OF INVESTMENT

The Machinery will be procured at US$830,000 shipped to Malawi at an estimated cost of US$11,000. The installation costs and related costs including buildings and equipment is estimated at MK100,000,000, and the total project costs to finish will be at MK730,750,000.

This is a turnkey project where the supplier of machinery will install and commission the plant including providing training to local staff.

The pictures above are representative of the intended project. The company will design its own packaging.

16.6 RUDEVIT BEVERAGES – FEASIBILITY STUDIES

The Company will carry out a feasibility study of producing beers from locally produced raw materials such as orange maize which is widely grown in almost all districts in Malawi thereby substituting all imported raw materials and in the process saving on the country's scarce forex resources. Positive outcomes of the feasibility study will potentially lead to identification of such local materials converting them from ordinary food crop to cash crop. This will as a result expand farming activities to improve household incomes.

It has been observed that in Mozambique a neighboring country to Malawi is already producing beer from maize that is produced locally in that country. The feasibility study will involve obtaining an understanding of the availability of raw materials, the market analysis and development of a finance model to ascertain not just profitability and acceptability of the product on the market while substituting the imported brands. The directors have already engaged various suppliers of beer manufacturing machinery who are used to the traditional way of making beer. As such the study will avail the directors an opportunity to make informed decision on the investments in beverages.
